Conference on Digital Pedagogy

15 March 2024

National University of Political Studies and Public Administration (SNSPA),

Faculty of Political Science, Teacher Training Department

Bucharest

2024 Theme: Teacher Training in Digital Pedagogy

As long foreseen, digital technologies are bringing significant changes in education. Two recent extraordinary events have set a new perspective on the potential of new technologies, accelerating the education practices, the thinking about the necessary innovation, also bringing more pressure from society, beneficiaries, education decision makers – the pandemics and the expansion of artificial intelligence.

Pushed forward by concrete experiences, immediate needs and higher expectations, the digital pedagogy builds a fresh vision of how to teach and learn, but also of what is taught. The content of learning and the teaching approaches are reshaping to overcome challenges, to avoid obsolescence, to embrace opportunities.

The International Conference on Digital Pedagogy is inviting higher education teaching staff, researchers, practitioners and decision makers to reflect upon challenges in teaching and upon pedagogical changes fostering a culture of authentic learning.

The Conference is organised by:

- National University of Political Studies and Public Administration (SNSPA), Bucharest
- Institute for Education foundation, Bucharest
- University of Klaipėdos, Klaipėda
- Link Campus University (LCU), Rome

Contributions are published in:

- Journal of Digital Pedagogy   doi.org/10.61071/JDP.3008-2021
- Revista de Pedagogie Digitala   doi.org/10.61071/RPD.3008-2013
